

PRESS RELEASE

Sollis and partners shortlisted in EHI 2011 awards

19 August 2011

Sollis today announced that it has been selected as a finalist in the prestigious eHealth Insider Awards 2011. The predictive modelling/risk stratification (ACG®) project has been shortlisted in the category 'Most promising IT for GP-led commissioning'. The pilot, sponsored by NHS South West London, extends across two commissioning groups: The Nelson Commissioning Group and the Independent Practices Commissioning Consortia (IPCC), and focuses on improving patient healthcare outcomes and enhancing the use of community care nurses and case managers.

The pilot has been running successfully since February 2011 and showcases the integration of the Johns Hopkins University ACG® (Adjusted Clinical Groups) system into the Sollis Clarity Commissioning suite. The resultant solution provides clinicians and managers with a single point of reference for clinical, financial and activity information, bringing together primary and secondary care data and supporting resource allocation and performance management. The new solution will enable clinical commissioners to find innovative ways of managing multi-morbidity patients.

Nigel Slone, Managing Director of Sollis says: "We are delighted to be shortlisted for this prestigious award. There is no bigger challenge in the NHS today than Long Term Conditions. By integrating Clarity Commissioning with the Johns Hopkins ACG® System, we can deliver evidenced based intelligence that assists clinicians and clinical commissioners in re-designing services that deliver better patient outcomes."

Dr Vasa Gnanapragasam, GP, Stonecot Surgery, Cheam says: "This is so powerful because it provides us with evidence. Decisions can now be based on hard intelligence and not anecdotes and fairy tales."

The final award winners will be announced on 6th October at the EHI awards ceremony.
